NOTES ON PAINT - PATRONS ONLY

April 2019

Exhibition in Richmond KY is up at the Richmond Area Arts Council. It's a cool building that used to be a church. Reception was nice too!

Working lately on flower paintings that take a lot of time and patience. Flowers just have a great visual intrigue. I like to make my own images, but working from public domain photographs has been good practice. I've also been adding things from my own photos to photos I find, making conglomerates. As in wide open, I added a hornets nest Yoko and I found walking around Lexington.

Wide Open, Work in progress

I am hoping to capture the energy of flowers and include some expressive personality, of my own style. It's fun to push and pull what is there and moving the viewer's eye around the painting.
